CONSOLIDATED GRAPHICS GROUP ANNOUNCES REMOTE PROOFING BREAKTHROUGH

Cleveland, OH – Consolidated Graphics Group (CGG), part of the Graphic Arts Centre, announces a revolutionary new remote proofing system that will help in managing your time and company's energies more efficiently, according to Ken Lanci, Graphic Arts Centre President.

Remote proofing uses two-way, Web enabled software. It allows you to view, annotate and manage proofs directly from a computer monitor while also giving you the ability to print to your ink jet printer. Everyone involved in the job's production can collaborate for quick sign off on proofs. There's a built-in tracking system that logs all proof changes. Remote proofing is like a printer's proof – with accurate color density – delivered right to your computer. All that's missing is the time and money you used to spend waiting for the courier to deliver a proof to your office.

“With remote proofing CGG provides an online proof for you and your clients to view and approve for content, placement and color. Time is money, Why wait for your proof to be delivered by courier when it can be delivered to your computer for quicker turnaround, faster approvals, and more efficient turnaround times?” said Lanci.
